ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.-Yesterday morning, the servants at the Exchange Hotel were attracted by load groans issuing from room No. 51, third floor. On proceeding to the door, it was found to be locked on the inside, and it was some time before they were able to effect an entrance. They found a young man lying on the bed in the most terrible convolsions, and by him a two ounce bottle of hydrocyanic acid, one-third empty, which too anrely indicated that he had taken poison. A doctor was sent for, whe, after some difficulty, sncceeded in relieving the unfortunate man, and he is rapidly recovering. Before swallowing the poison, he left upon his table several letters; one to the proprietor of the hotel, requesting him to telegraph to his friends in Cincinnati, where he resides. For obvious reasons we suppress his name. The kind attentions of the proprietor and the clerks of the Exchange have assisted, very materially, the recovery of the would-be suicide. He could not have received more kind attention from a mother's hand.

UNITED STATES HOTEL .- Our readers will see the card of Messrs. Bledsoe & Hall, in our paper this morning, announcing a dissolution of their partnership. J. G. Bledsoe has sold out all his interest to Joseph R. Garnett, of Glasgow, who, in conjunction with Robert B. Hall, will continue to keep the United States Hotel, corner of Fourth and Jefferson streets.

This hotel is one of the best kept houses in the city. The table is always well furnished, and the comforts of boarders and travelere particularly attended to. The hotel is tavorably located in the central part of the city, contiguous to Masonic Temple and Mozart Hall.

While we regret the loss of Mr. Bledsoe from the city, we are satisfied that Mr. Garnett will fill the place equal to any other man in the State.

Those of our readers who had intended t visit Masonic Temple, on Thursday night, to witness Dr. Stone's interesting experiments, but were disappointed on account of the severity of the weather, will be pleased to learn that the entertainment was postponed until Monday night next, and, as that will be the last opportunity to witness the wonderful and amusing phenomena in animal magnetism, produced by one who has never been success, we hope all who are in terested in the subject will be preaent. We no derstand that there will be no further postpone ment on account of the weather, as other engage ments oblige the Doctor to leave Louisville on Tuesday next. Those, therefore, who desire to make themselves acquainted with the art by receiving instructions, would do well to call at once upon that gentleman, at the United States Hotel

OOD FELLOW'S HALL, LEXINGTON .- It will be seen by the advertisement in our "Amusement column, that Mr. Geo. Wright, proprietor of the new and magnificent Odd Fellow's Hall at Lexington, is now ready to rent it for concerts, operas, theatrical entertainments, etc. The room is very large, commodious, well arranged, and admirably fitted for public entertainments. Lexington is well known for the liberal patronage she has always extended to entertainments and exhibitions of merit, and with the additional attraction of this splendid new hall, it will be more generally visited by concerts and operatic troupes than heretofore.

THE CHRISTIAN UNION .- This admirable rel gious paper is ready for delivery this morning.-The contents of the present number will be found

Her great charm may be distinctly announced as originality, for she possesses qualities which permit her to present music, characters, and idealities entirely distinct from all those who have gone before her. The 'divine fire' imbues her system, every novement of that perfect form, every expression of that beautiful face, every playful movement of those facial muscles, every winning glance of the eye, every sympathetic and penetrating note of her voice, impresses you with these feelings. It is not claimed or her that the possesses that ornate atyle which tickles the fancy of assumed and fastidious critics, but she has that humanity of action, that ove of all that is natural, that desire to be true without exaggeration, that conquers the masses and captivates the world. In opera, as the bold and sprightly Tertina, in Mozart's Don Giovanni, as the lovable Maria, in La Figlia del Regimento, and in the earnest, intense, and passionate character of Violetta, in Verdi's Trovatore, those who have heard must acknowledge she is supremely acomparable, and that she possesses qualities never vouchsafed to any artist who has preceded

THE FRESH WATER AQUARIUM.

BY ELBERT PERCE. The wonderful gifts of nature are strewn hou tifully throughout the earth, and he who seeks the pleasure rendered to a correct imagination, by the contemplation of the various and marvellous works of the Creator of the universe. One becomes inspired with a sentiment of awe and additional marvellous as he cazes at even the most tiny of the water and remains motionless compared to a correct imagination, by the contemplation of the various and marvellous and in a week or two, two front ones thrust them selves out from under the mouth. The tadpole now becomes discontented and unhappy. He created objects; and when he observes that God has not neglected even the most insignificant reafule, but that every care has been taken to provide for its safety and convenience, he no long-er wonders why it was created. The mind is at once led to the helief that the little insect has already accomplished at least one of the designs of Providence, by calling the attention of the beholder to the wonderful mercy and goodness of To the lover of nature, the fresh water aquari um affords opportunities of enjoyment and in-structiou, even greater than those afforded by the marine aquarium. To the collector of speci-mens, especially, does it give an opportunity for rare pleasures. The places in which he is obliged to seek for his specimens, are found in localities where nature reigns alone. He must leave the where nature reigns alone. He must leave the haunts of men, and in some quict wood or meadow, search for a stream or poud, which, when found, will prove a mine of wealth to him. I will relate one of my own experiences in collecting specimens: Provided with a small net, a busket for vegetable specimens, and a convenient pail for animals, insects, and small fish, I started forth one bright summer morning. The dew still glistened on the grass, and dampened the rails of the fences as I plodded along the dusty road. The birds were greeting the rising sun with their joyous notes, and my soul was filled with a calmness and indifference to all the cares and troubles of life, which exhilarated my spirits and animated my body. Soon I reached a path which led directly into a wood.—The trees were alive with birds, and gaudy insects filted through the air on all sides. The path ran down a geutle declivity to the margin of sects fitted through the air on all sides. The path ran down a geutle declivity to the margin of a brook, which, issuing from a stone-imbedded spring, leaped and gurgled through a rocky goige ou its way to New York Bay. The water was as clear as crystal, and every stone and rock in the stream was a miniature island of verdure. And now commenced by task of love. With my net tow commenced by task of love. With my net carefully dipped beneath every stone, and in every pool. How my heart throbbed when after two or three dips I captured a beautiful brook newt. I caught but one. I had visited the stream in question for a lew crayfish, which can be found only in running water; but which live and theirs in a tent became to the careful but which it was not their in a tent became to the careful but which live and their in a tent became to my many the careful but which live and their in the careful but we have the careful became the careful but we have th which live and thrive in a tank, becoming one of its most interesting denizers. I was successful is most interesting decizens. I was successfunctuking five or six crayfish, and also some hal a dozen striped dace, a most elegantly marked and graceful fish. The striped dace is indeed a most beautiful fish, and deserves a special description. The fish, wheu full grown, is about four inches in length, and its form is gracefully proportioned. Its back is golden brown, its under part ailver white, and its fins crimson. Along the center of its side from its mounts the time. center of its side, from its mouth to the tip of tail, extends a jet black stripe one-third th idth of its body, which gives it its peculiar name. Ilaving placed the fish in my pail, which was iled with water. I left the stream and pro-seded deeper into the wood. Soon I could deeet glimpses of water shining in the sunlight brough the trees, and in a moment I arrived on the bank of a pond of considerable extent. The the bank of a point of considerable extent. The beauty of its locality and the crystal purity of its water, has given to this point the name of Silver lake. The point abounds with vegetable, animal and insect life, and is, itself, one of nature's grand aquaria. It has neither outlet nor inlet. I first maria. It has neither outlet nor inlet. I firs mens. I threw my net, and, upon examining its ontents, found in that hand almost a sufficient ariety. I continued my labors, however, until was satisfied that I had all the varieties the pond suld afford; and as they were all well adapted r the aquarium, and as they can be found in al-

ost every poud or lake in the country, I will give list of the coutents of my pail.

As I will hereafter show, shell fish are necessary juncts to both the fresh water and the marine quaria. They act the part of scavengers.— The contents of my pail were as follows: Of mol-us ca I had several specimens of the common arsh shell, (paludina viripara,) a dozen or so of onds and swamps. These snails breed very rap-dly, and their eggs are eagerly eaten by the fish t would be necessary, therefore, if desirons of bserving the maturing of these shells, to remove he spawn to a small far containing growing quatte plants, in which they will soon grow to erfection. After they are full grown, they can again introduced into the larger tank. These nails are indispensable to the perfect success of a wity, they languish and die, and others spring up from their roots. The old plants naturally decay and if the snails did not feed engerly upon the de aving leaves and consume them, they would soon aint the water to the destruction of every living

ny captives. They are sprightly little fellows and elegantly marked. They are easily tamed. ad two or three minature cat fish, scarcely an ich long, but perfect in fin, whisker and spine They are astonishingly active, but untamable.
These complete the list, but it can be much extended, for by visiting various ponds and streams a great variety may be obtained. I will mention a few that I have myself captured. Whether the

The stickleback is probably the most interesting that can be introduced into any aquarium It inhabits both salt and fresh water. They are o belligerent, however, that they must have a ank for themselves. Nature has provided the stickleback with no insignificant weapons, in the shape of spines, which are placed on his back and sides, and which he can erect and deat pleasure, and with which he indicts deadly wounds upon antagonists much ex-ceeding him in hulk. A male and several fe-male sticklebacks abould be the sole occupants of a tank, and a "sticklehackery," as this tank has been termed, is a very curious and interesting object. Although very quarrelsome with male companions, to the females he is very gallant. He attends to all the domestic concerns of his family himself. At spawning time, he builds a nest of pieces of leaves and twigs, which he cements together by a glutinous aubstance that exndes from his skip. He now changes his dark arguments for brillium scattered to the gargest. garments for brilliant scarlet, and in this gorge ous attire watches the nest containing the eggs deposited there. And now his nature is changed. Such a fretting, fuming little fellow, no one ever hefore witnessed. Should a female sticklehack make the slightest movement towards the uest away he dashes at her, and drives her from it with the greatest fury. At length, after a few weeks watching, he is rewarded, and a awarm of infantile sticklebacks issue from the next. In a short time his care for them is forgotten; they rapidly increase in size, and the tank becomes a scene of constant warfare.

I had a dozen or so frog-tadpoles of various sizes, in my pail. They form excellent inmates of a tank. While they remain tadpoles (which, if taken while young, will be some months), they are good scavengers, and are perfectly happy and contented. As they grow, two hind legs first appear, and in a week for two two trong once they are the target once they are th upon some projecting stone. Of water beetles, there are several kinds, of every color, and they are pleasing additions to the tank. They are pronounced unsafe for a tank with fish, but I have generally kept several in my aquaria, and have found them innocent; but I have always supplied them with food. They have occasionally dragged some unfortunate snail from his shell, or worried a tadpole, but their beauty saved them, and they have invariably scauty saved them, and they have invariably, iter several hard knocks given them with a dender stick when caught in mischief, reformed, and become staid members of my little com-

This completes the list. I have on other occasions found different insects—one, especially, for which I have as yet found no name. I dragged my net one day in a pool of minddy water, and, among a number of tadpoles, I saw what looked like a walking straw! I could not get a fair look at the fellow until I had placed him in my tank. I took him from the pail with a pair of pincers.—I did not like his appearance at all; for although I saw no place from which he could hite, yet there was plenty of room for a sting. He went clumsily to the bottom of the tank, but soon becoming at home, he hoated up and steadied himself on a leaf, and I had a fair view of him. Imagine an oat straw, a dark grey color, however, about oat straw, a dark grey color, however, about three inches long, and with three joints. From each of these joints extended two long and jointed legs. His tail was round and sharp at the extremity, and pointed stifly upwards. His head consisted, as far as I could see, of two bead-shaped eyes. Directly from beneath the first joint in his budy extended two fasters. body extended two feelers, or arms, and with these he commenced cleansing off the mud which encased his hody. After having finished this process he glanced around, and soon his eyes fell upon an unfortunate boatman, who was reposing in fancied security on the surface of the water. Friday's Proceedings Continued.

Washington, D. C., February 25.—Senate.—
The Cuban bill was takeu up.
Mr. Wilson offered an amendment, setting forth that reciprocal commercial intercourse among nations promotes mutual prosperity, and is the surest guarantee of permanent welfare.
Mr. Mallory, of Fla., proceeded to finish his speech, commenced some days since. He cited the policy of President Jefferson, who said if we were justified in going to war for the acquisition of any territory, it would not be for Cuba. He reviewed the commercial advantages to be derived from its acquisition, and he contended that if Cuba was annexed, the slave trade would be completely destroyed. That trade was fostered by the Captain General of Cuba, as Mr. Mallory showed by a minnte and interesting statement of how it was carried on, from the purchase of a slave ship to the landing of slaves under permits. He received for it, at the rate of three ounces per head.

he distracting subject of slavery with the acquision of Cuba.

Mr. Dixon, of Conn., spoke nearly two hours in replying to the points of Mr. Benjamin's recent speech. Mr. Benjamin had urged that unless we acquire Cuba, Spain will emancipate the slaves. Mr. Dixon reasoned that if freedom in Cuba would be injurions to the United States, in Jamsica it must be equally so. This is not used as an argument for the purchase of Jamsica from Great Britain. Mr. Benjamin had reasoned that compulsory labor was necessary to develop tropical prolabor was necessary to develop tropical pro-ictions. Mr. Dixon thought thet sugar, to sup-very the world, could be grown by free labor; and it could not, sugar was not a sufficient equiva-nt for the perpetuation of slavery. In the course his remarks, Mr. Dixon took occasion to say hat slavery degraded free labor. Mr. Reed, of N. C., controverted that opinion. He said the doctrine was new in the South, and maintained that the white man is not degraded by labor, although he works at the bench or in the field, side by side with his deep he field, side by side with his slave.

Mr. Dixon refused to admit the correctness of

The Committee's report is skillfully drawn up.—
It provide's extension to the trade and commerce of the North; to the populiar industry of the It provide's extension to the trade and commerce of the North; to the peculiar industry of the South; and to the agriculture of the West. It is passed to habituate the country to the cry of war. But we are making no preparations for war, and, on the contrary are trying to get along without a revenue. For himself, he would favor the acquiring the control of the island, either as a protectorate or as an independent power, but he likewise holds that the time is not yet come when its possession is necessary, either to our development or security. We are not now in a position to accept Cubn, if Spain should offer it until we have built up our navy to a strength to maintain The first blow which would be struck in ir with a naval power, would be to wrest it on us and hold its fine harbor as a means of anyances against us. The Speaker was here obliged to restrain the prevailing disorder.
Mr. Phillips wanted Mr. Phelps to understand, now and henceforth, that he would vote as he ought right.
Mr. Phelps explained that he did not say that he had any sgency in placing Mr. Phillips on the Committee of Ways and Means, but that he was placed there by the wishes and urgent solicitations of the friends of the Administration.

That Street Paving Fraud Again. We briefly alluded the other day to a piece stapendous fraud or stupidity on the part of the debt of from fifty to one hundred thousand dollars very kind feelings. upon the city. We intend to prohe the matter to brought out in proof on the trial of some of the cases in the court helow.

Our purpose, however, in this article, is simply to call public attention to the remedy which is now proposed for the evil done. It is now gravely proposed that the streets be torn up and repaved at the expense of the property holders .-Such an act of wanton malice would be a fitting sequel to the defeated schemes of fraud, or blunders of ignorance, which it is connected with. It will not be pretended that this would remunerate the city for her losses. The pretense of using the material is simply absurd. It would ost as much to take it up as it is worth .-The true object of the movement is to gunish the men who have exposed the fraud .t is as if the thief caught with your watch in his pocket, should revenge himself for the detection by crushing the watch under his heel.

An ordinance is passed in due form to pave cercam streets, but the Mayor and Council so shape the contracts as to give to their pet contractors double price for the work done. The work itself is not half done, but the City Engineer reports it all right, and the Council receives The Court of Appeals say that in consequence of these frauds on the part of her officers, the city s bound to pay for the work; and now, to avenge themselves upon the men who have refused to be so defrauded, it is gravely proposed to tear up the streets, to render some of the most thronged thoroughfares of the city impassable for the next year, and for what end? To punish the men they could not swindle, to break the watch because they could not steal it. But this is not the only object in view. The same hungry contractors are out of a ob. It would suit their convenience most ad- of the country to make suggestions as to mirably just now to have the tearing up and repaving of those streets, especially if they could contract for paving prices, and be permitted to Macademize and only half do their work at that The infamy of such a proposition is equaled only

It is Lowever, but a harmless explosion of impo tent rage. They have no power to do the wrong they threaten. The same judicial tribunals that kent their sacrilegious hands out of the pockets of the property holders, will arrest by injunction any attempt to perpetrate the threatened outrage if they should have the folly to attempt it.

That they have the will is evidenced by the fact that they have so far entertained the proposition as to refer it to a committee.

Let those who do not wish to see the city involved in litigation - the end of which no man can see-who are not willing to be taxed to gratity the vengeance and malice of defeated fraud, look well to it in the coming election. It is time, full time, that the Augean stable was cleansed - time that the crow bar was inserted under the rotten timbers. and the secret harraws of the rats, that have so long nibbled at the public crib, laid hare

We shall resume this subject from time to time. If the voters of Louisville are determined to keep such a faction in power, they shall at least do it with their eves open.

Good News for Mechanics-Ladder Making. For the last four years an unfortunate faction has lorded it over Lonisville, and by their pro scriptive and bigoted tactics, driven off many of our mechanics, and starved out others. The foreign artisan and Catholic have not been upon an equality with the native and the Protestant. And, stranger than all, the aristocratic mechanic, the wielder of capital, and the bosser of hands, has come in for the lion's share of the jobs that smaller contractors were considered impudent in aspiring

A change, however, has come over the dreams of those political empyrics who thought they could make a city's population according to order. They have learned that both the Catholic and the foreign element are as necessary in a great city as the native and Protestant. There is an appropriate sphere for the action of both, and that phere cannot be filled without them. The money of the Catholic is as good to huy and to sell with as that of the Protesant, and the Ishor of the foreigner as necessary, in its place, as that of the

The great evidence of this change in the policy of the thirty tyrants of Louisville, is the declaration of a leading Sam-Nicholasite in the late Do-Nothing pow-wow, that he was for coming down to a level with the people. And as these lofty Sam-Nicholasites, who dwell in fine houses, and collect large rents, and ride in carriages, intend coming down to a level with the people, as a matter of course ladders will be necessary for them to come down upon. And as ladders are necessary, of course mechanics will have to make them. There is therefore a fine field about to open in Lonisville for mechanical labor. It would be difficult to tell how long a ladder it would require to let Judge Nicholas down to a level with the people, for he is reported to have said, while upon his sky-kissing Pagasus, that FAMILY SEWING MACHINES, there were only three gentlemen in Louisville; the first, a man now dead; the second, an existing Sam-Nicholasite; and the third, modesty forhade his naming. Pretty long ladders would also be necessary for Judge Bullock, the suggester of the climbing down operation; for the grandiloquent Lord Chief Justice Robertson; for the fifth atory Garret Davis, and for others that

The editor of the Journal, who calls the convention "the elite of Kentucky." would require an ascending ladder to get to a level with the honest recomancy of the State, and Mr. O'Dell would, of sourse, want something of the kind to get out of the chasm of Curtius into which he proposed to leap, but these ascending ladders would be the same to the mechanic as the descending ones of Nicho. las and others. Inde.d, the ladder which would elevate the editor of the Journal to the honest and good people, and that which would resurrect

New Books To the extensive publishing house of Harper & Brothers we are indehted for some valuable works just issued. Among these are:

A Narrative of the Exploration of the Tributaries of the River La Plata, and Adjacent Countries, during the years of 1858-4-5, &c., by Thomas I. Page, U. S. N. 'During these explorations, Mr. Page was under the orders of our Government, and the book before us is an expansion of the one made to the Secretary of the Navy. It is therefore an official document, so far as the details of the narrative are concerned. At this time Mr. Page's book is full of interest. Our Government has sent a naval armament into the very waters, and among the very people about whom the information of this volume is given. The book tells us of 3,000 miles of navigable waters which were not before known even to the natives, and goes over 4,000 miles of the lands of Paraguay and the Argentine confederation. It opens, as it were, a new world to the reader, for hefore this book was written there was not sufficient information as to the facts and these countries in South America. It is a volume of 600 pages, well printed with large type, and full of valuable information, illustrated with numerous maps, engravings, etc. Travels and Discoveries in North and Central Africa in 1849-1855. This is the third and last volume of the work which has been for some time before the public. It is by Henry Barth, who was sent into Africa by the British Government | the Skirt is never thrown out of shape. to make explorations. It is a work of intense interest, not only to the student of geography, but to every one who would know the wonders of Central Africa, a country heretofore comparatively unknown. Mr. Barth saw much that no other European saw before him, and has described what he discovered in a style too agreeable not to he read with interest hy every one of judgment aud taste. This work is also illustrated with maps, wood cuts, and steel engravings, which add much to the value of its reading matter. The Laird of Norlaw. This is an Interesting and thrilling Scottish story, by the author of Margaret Maitland, Lillies Leaf, Orphana, The Days of My Life, etc. It is a story with a plot well laid, and the narrative well told. It is a single volume, easy to handle, and suited for afternoon's or evening's readings, when graver works L. Lee, No. 449 Market street, second door shove City Council, which has resulted in saddling a and larger volumes would be taken up with no Fourth. He has a complete assortment of men's,

It would be an act of egotistical presumption or our part, as a stranger among the good people of Kentucky, to presume to dictate to them with reference to their public men and distinguished statesmen. Therefore the readers of the Stand-ard must pardon us when we follow in the footthe senior editor of this paper in ac quiescing in his sentiments with regard to the dis-tinguished individual whose name stands at the head of this article. The reason we ask pardon, is the fact that we feel great delicacy in pre-suming to advise a people in regard to what has already been discussed through the columns of the Standard by our worthy co-laborer. But, as we appear before our readers to day, in the capacity the assistant editor of the Standard, and cheer fully imbibing the great leading principles of the Democratic party, which have stood the or slaughts of every faction, it is, and should he, ou duty, to render all the aid we can in advancin the interests of said organization, and that w will do "at all hazards and at the last extremity The Presidential can was of 1800 is near at hand, and as there are speculations rife as to who is likely to be nominated for that high and responsible position on the Democratic side of politic parties, it is natural for the Democratic would likely be the most available person, who olitical course is without blot or blemish. erent opinions are expressed and entertu with regard to the matter in question, and al-though there has been but little as yet said upor the subject, yet from the tone of some of the lead-ing organs of the confederacy, together with the roice of a great many of her people, we are prou-to say that the honorable gentleman whose name hoats at our mast-head, is destined to produce a sensation among the great mass of the Demo cratic party previous to the assembling at Charles ton to uomiuate a candidate.

The name and talents of James Guthrie, of Kv is as familiar with the people as household word and his indefatigable devotion to the great princ ples of Democracy, together with his honesty and zeal in the discharge of his official duties as Sec retary of the Treasury, under the administration of Franklin Pierce, is an index of his unsullied reputation and a safe purport of greater intellect ality and noble progress. In the present aspect of political affairs, when the Union is infested with hordes of demagogues and tricksters, each eager to satisfe their craving appetites, it behooves the true Democracy to be up and deing—canvassing among themselves, a to who will be the most competent and availabl candidate to occupy the White House in 1860.

DEATH WARRANT OF CORRIE.-The Governor of Maryland has signed the death warrant of Peter Corrie, who is to be hung on March 18th. The Baltimore Sun sava of it: During the reading of the fatal instrument Corrie stood firm and exhibited no sign of emo-tion, other than that his face blanched. After the sheriff had concluded, the prisoner remarked: Well, I know my doom. The Governor has given us a very short day; he ought to have given as longer time. He ought to know that men brought up like we were, would require a long time to get into the right way. It was like takng up young mules, which require a long time o break." The sheriff replied that as the time was short, there was the greater necessity for making the best spiritual use of it. Corrie then again said: "The Governor ought to have given us longer time." After a few more words, in which the sheriff told him that he would he made comfortable while he had to live, the officers bid the condemned man farewell and retired. While speaking, Corrie's voice betrayed great emotion, and he was evidently agitated, and has a fearfi dream of his approaching fate. The hanging of four men at the same time, and on the same gal lows, never before occurred in this city. In Italy, a lover at a hall places 2 fingers or his mouth, which signifies to a lady "you are very handsome, and I wish to speak to you." If abe tonches her cheek with her fan, and lets i gently drop, that signifies "I consent;" but if she turns her head it is a denial. At a ball in Paris to take a lady out to dance with her, is only andi ference; to place yourself near her, is interest; but to follow her with your eyes in the dance, is love

FURTHER BY THE CANADA. HALIFAX, Feb. 25.—FRANCE.—The session of the French Legislature was opened on the 7th nstant with an important speech from the Em-eror. The Emperor referring to the existing agitation, stated that it was excited without any pparent and imminent danger, and, after ex-pressing regret at the disquietude and pointing to his peaceful policy as a proof of his modera-ion, he proceeded to speak as follows: To-day it is any duty to explain again what you appear to have forgotten, what have ever been my feelings to re-assure Europe, to restore France to her tru rank amongst nations, to cement closely an al-liance with England, and to regulate with the ontinental powers the extent of our relations ac ording to and in conformity with our views and the relation toward France.

It was in that spirit that on the eve of my third ection I made at Bordeaux, the declaration tha the empire is peace; and, anxious to prove by that expression that although the heir of Napole-on the first had ascended the throne, he would inaugurate a system which could only be dis-turbed for the purpose of defending the great na-tion's interest. With respect to the alliance with England, I have used all my perseverance to con-solidate and have formed a happy reciprocation of sentiment on the part of the Queen and of the statesmen of every shade of opiniou. Also to attain that end so valuable to the peace of the world have I thrown aside all opporlunities of reviving all irritating remembrance of the past calumnious attack, dictated by prejudice and even by the national antipathies of my own coun-

this alliance has borne its fruits. Not onl nave we acquired a lasting glory in the East, but at the extremity of the world we have just opened an immense empire to the progress of civilization and the Christian religion. The relations with Europe have assumed the frankest cordiality.— The relations with Prussia have never ceased to be animated by mutual good will. The cabinets of Vienna and France, on the contrary, I speak it with regret, have disagreed upon important questions, and it required the most conciliatory spirit to succeed in arranging them. For instance, the preconstruction of the Principalities was not he reconstruction of the Principalities was not ompleted without many difficulties. Were I asked what interest France has in those

Were I asked what interest France has in those distant countries, I should reply that the interest of France is everywhere where there is just cause, and when civilization ought to be made to prevail. In this state of things, it is nothing extraordinary that France should draw closer to Piedmont, which has proved herself so devoted during the war, and so faithful to our policy during peace. The marriage of my well beloved cousin had no hidden meaning, but was the natural consequence of the community of interests of the quence of the community of interests of the puntries and the friendship of their sovereigns, or some time the state of Italy, her abnormal sition where order cannot be obtained except by oreign troops, gives just cause for anxiety to di-domacy. This, however, is not a sufficient mo-ive to give rise to the belief in war. Some may nvoke it, with all their heart, without legitimate easons; others may, in their exaggerated fears, ndeavor to show to France the dangers of a co-

CHRONOMETER WATCHES. Boston, November 27, 1858. WE hereby constitute Messus. JOHN KITTS & CO. Sole and Exclusive Agents for the sale of the Watches made by Charles Frodsham, 44 Strand Lonuon, for the city of Louisville and State of Keutucky S. WILLARD & SON, 9 Congress st., Sole Agents for the United States.

CHARLES FRODSHAM'S WATCHES. SIMON WILLARD & SON. No. 9 Congress Street, Boston

Sole Agents in the United States of America of CHAS FRODSHAM, 34 Strand, Lordon, would respectfully give notice that, at the distribution of Prizes at the Great Pari: Exhibition, 1855, the GRAND MEDAL OF HONOR

Was awarded to Mr. Frodsham for the perfection of the principle, mechanism, and performance of the Chronometer Watches exhibited by him, and styled his "NEW SERIES."

The critical notice accompanying the award, written by a distinguished French Saven, says. "Mr. Frodsham, herefore, has rendered eminent service to science; it is justice that he be rewarded for it, at least with the culoglum of public praise."

In the new series, Mr. Frodsham has succeeded by a more perfect method of compansation, a more correct adjustment in isconrouism, and in an entirely new and peculiar construction of the train, in producing watches unaffected by changes of temperature, position or motion, or even violent exercise, and at the same time of unrivaled accuracy.

At the London Exhibition of 1851, Mr. Frodsham's contribution was noticed as bearing the stamp of paculiar merit, and being the flower of the English school in the same time of the producing was noticed as bearing the stamp of paculiar merit, and being the flower of the English school in the producing merit, and being the flower of the English school.

At the London Exhibition of 1851, Mr. Frodsham's contribution was noticed as bearing the stamp of peculiar mer.t, and being the flower of the English school.

In recognition of the excellence of the principle of its lime keepers, the British Government has awarded Mr. Frodsham, after a great number of experiments came to the conclusion that the only way to improve the

Mr. Frodsham, after a great number of experiments came to the conclusion that the only way to improve the watch was by alloping the proportions of the Marine Chronometer, its tests and adjustments.—this Mr. Frod shau has done in the watches of the New Series, and itses found that will strictly chronometrical proportions they are quite at variance with many of those of the New Series, where the modern construction. Experience proves the New Series Warches to be stronger, more powerful, and more accurate than any heretofore produced.

The manipulation or mechanical excellence of finish of the work, each Watch being a model of perfection. The final adjustments of Compensation, isochronism, and Positions,—whereby neither extremes of temperature, violent exercise, nor change of place, have anappreciable disturbing effect.

As a pecular advantage, there is no danger of stopping under the most violent motion, either in the cars, on horseback, or in any vehicle.

In over one hundred instances these watches have stood the test of actual daily noting, and have exhibited as a result, a rate aqual in regularity to the best Marine Chronometers. In several instances, their performance at set has been superior to the Chronometer.

To those who reside on the line of railroads, or whose avocations taking them frequantly in the cars, make a perfect timekeeper liss of a uxnry than a necessity, these Watches are recommended with the most compilete confidence.

Wm. Brown, Eq., a distinguished engineer of Ohio,

[From the Quincy (III.) Whig, Feb. 21.] The Murder of Henry H. Johnson at Quincy-Intense Excitement at Quincy, and Houses of Ill-fame Mobbed. A man by the name of Henry M. Johnson, of Missouri, was killed at a house of ill-fame, on York, between Sixth and Seventh streets—heing in the rear of the "York House"—on Friday night, about il o'clock. He was stabled by the proprietor of the den, whose name is Thomas Cassaday, who, together with James Thornton, charged as accessory, is now under arrest, It uppears that Johnson and Cassaday got into account of call of the party agrees and el-called each other hard names and rushed together about the same time. Johnson without any weapons, and Cassaday with a dirk Johnson received two stabs, one in the heart, and the other in the right lung. He ran out of the house, fell as soon as he reached the pavement, and expired in a lew minutes.

An inquest was held, and the jury returned a verdict that the deceased was unlawfully slain and murdered by Thomas Cassiday, and that James Thornton was an accessory to the murder. Cassiday and Thornton were then duly committed to jail by the coronor, to await the action of the grand jury in the matter.

As the prisoners were being carried to the jail. several voices cried out, "Hang them! hang them!" and a runt was made by the crowd. The however, succeeded in lodging them tention of putting the threat into execution. I shows, nevaltheless, the intensity of the feeling POSTCRIPT,-Since the above was written , the demonstration that we anticipated has been made to a certa a extent.

A number of houses of an infamous character were attacked on Saturday night by an infuriated mob, and almost trully demohabed. The first buildings assailed were those on York street, where the murler was committed. The three houses occupied by these abandoned creatures were attacked, and everything was destroyed that could be, by the made. Windows were broken, doors kno ked down, and furniture burut up.— They also gutted the house of the notorious Mally Jett, on State street. From thence they went to a house of ill-fame on Ninth street, between Maine and Jersey, where they did the same thing, taking the furniture out and burning it in the randel of the street. Several other houses were thus assailed, and the moh concluded by going in a Charley Bray's where they supposed up to Charley Brow's—where they supposed all the fugitive scoundrels, male and fe nale, were assembled—and burnt it down. Eight houses were destroyed.

THE PARM: THE ORCHARD: THE STOCK RANGE LOUISVILLE ... FEBRUARY 26, 1859.

GRAPE CULTURE. This is a subject that we have at all times de lighted to present to the consideration of our In town or in country it is a practicable pursuit. Wherever there is a sunny aspect, and a foot square of ground not coverel by a building, a fence, a pavement, or other tangihle object, there the grape vine may be planted and the grape cultivated. Of course large vineyards can exist only in the country, but in every small garden in city or village, where the sun is permitted to shine, and the circulation of the air is unobstructed grapes enough may be grown for the use of the family, with some to give to a neighbor, if not to sell in the public market. Let every farmer or other resident in the country, who has not grapes, and every owner or tenant of a house in townwhose family is not at present supplied with this delicious and wholesome article of food, take a new start from this hint, and stick in a few Catawba and Isabella roots forthwith. The cost wil be the merest trifle now, while pleasant and beautiful foliage will be supplied from the first year, and after the third year, a rarely-failing basket of fruit will be furnished for every seasonable day's dessert.

The past two or three years have been so unfavorable for the product of the vine in near ly all parts of the Objo valley, that many vinedressers have become disheartened, and some ever threaten to plow up their vinevards, and return to the growing of potatoes and cabbages. But have not potatoes and cabbages failed within the same time? According to our recollection, they have, most decidedly, in many localities; and corn, oats, and wheat, apples, peaches, and pears, have failed with them. Think over what a wide extent of country oats failed the past season. Year hefore last, remember how much of the corn failed to mature in Northern and Central Kentucky, in Southern Ohio and Indiana, and in many sections of the West beside. Call to mind how. for several years past, the farmers of Illinois have suffered from the winter-killing of their wheat. the ravages of the chinch bug, and other causes. Think, also, how much money and hard labor have been lost by feeders and drovers, in consequence of the extensive and long continued prevalence of hog cholera." Before any one, engaged in any branch of pro dective industry, suffers himself to become disonraged, he should look beyond his own walls, or his own fence. His neighbors, engaged in other branches, may be faring as badly as he is himself. And if they are not doing so this year, they may have done so last year; and very likely, if they were fortunate this year and last year both, they will have their time of trial next year, while you uck will then be culminating in a good harvest We must look at and think of all these things .-We must take the seasons as we find them-look iug for the best, preparing for the worst. Ile who does not act in this spirit, lacks the chief element of success and happiness in life.

A great deal has been said and written the past vear about the failure of the grape, and some who liselaim being either prophets themselves or the sons of prophets, have yet predicted that the manfacture of wines to the Ohio valley and in other parts of the Western and Southwestern country, vill soon show itself to be a magnificent failure. So does not think Nicholas Longworth, who has more prested in this interest than any other man. And Robert Buchanan, who is one of the most persovering and systematic cultivators of the grave and nanufacturers of wine in the Ohio valley, and who is as accurate in posting up the memorandums of nis vineyard as the accounts of his mercantile huawould not just at present counsel large outlays, upon manual labor and its quick returns, in plauting and cultivating viueyards. Last year, although many of the vineyards about Cincinnati failed partially or almost wholly, some, both in Hamilton and several neighboring counties, made a fair yield of grapes, the wine nanufactured from which was superior to that of average years, and will command a better price And at Hermann, Mo., where there was so extra ordinary a crop the year hefore, there was a fair crop in '58, though the vintners were hardly enti-

especially by that class of persons who depend

We suggest, (and we are among the sufferers n grape culture, as well as in peach and pear culture,) that the time to be disheartened and give up has not yet come. ROTATION AND DEEP SOIL-A CORN EXPERI-MENT. Regular rotation of crops and deep plowing are working wonders upon some of the old and longworn farms of New England. In the discussion: before the Maine State Board of Agriculture, which met at the scat of Government in January, many of the delegates bore striking and uniform testi mony to the value of both these practices, especially upon lands that had been cropped hard .-One of the members mentioned a field of fifteen acres, "hadly bound out," which was plowed three nches deeper than ever before, and after an ap plication of three bushels of plaster of paris, pro duced a yield of 600 bushels of outs. This forty bushels to the acre. Another reported vield of 82 bushels shelled corn per acre-56 lbs. o the bushel, from a field similarly treated.

Results very like these could be obtained from many of the old fields of Kentucky, which now grow nothing but sedge and hriers, if deeply plowed, and the application of plaster were sub stituted by a generous quantity of barn-yard ma nure, or a compost of which the base should be table dung and scrapings from the woods. We have our mind's eye now upon an old field welve miles from Louisville, which was treated in this manner three years ago, and gave a yield of corn in return that much more than paid exenses. Without further preparation it was seed ed to grass, sown upon the corn stubble, and will this coming season be more than fair pastnre or meadow, for one or the other of which it is designed. The corn, in this experiment, was ma ured in the hill. Our farmers complain of the great labor and heavy cost of such experiments. But auch com plaints are without reason. Every farmer who keeps merely two or three horses, four or five cattle, a half dozen sheep, and a dozen hogs, if he will only litter his stalls, pens, and barn yard, with the cheap litter afforded by the woods a short disance from his dwelling house, in quantities nongle to furnish his animals with comfortable nedding, he can have every year, by planting time n the spring, a mountain of compost snch as we have described that will perfectly autonish hia own eyes. So much for the cost of that part of the experi ment. It really costs nothing, for it will pay for itself in the increased comfort supplied to his stock, and the diminished quantity of food necessary to carry them through the winter. As for the labor and expense of hanling out, that is not very formidable, when you post up and look the hing right in the face. In the instance to which we have referred, after the field was checked off for the seed, a two-horse wagon and three men manured four acres per day -giving to each hill a large shovel-full of the compost. The actual expense in this case was probably two dollars per day, but in any case would not be over four dollars, or one dollar per acre. Without the manure, the old field might possibly have yielded 25 bushels to the acre; with t, it yielded about 40 bushels. Difference -15 oushels, which, at only 33% cents per bushel, is 25 00 All this is clear gain, for the cost of hanling ont and applying the maunre is fally repaid by the condition in which the crop left the ground for grass.

After this field has lain in grass two or three years, it will probably be turned over for another trial, and we will then speak of it again.

Hare'a Journal of Health recommends shoes ustead of boots for generally winter wear, espe cially in the country, as the tendency of the for-ARRENTO FOR MURDER.—Some weeks ago we published as account of the accidental drivering in a well of a life Brings in Carroll county, but well apon the arrival of he arrival of he arrival of he well—and the surpressible of the mer is to strengthen, and that of the latter to series of arlicles for the Michigan Farmer, on illustrations of the wool from sheep of the various breeds and crosses, including specimens from some of the finest imported and native bred animals in the United States. This work is calculated to throw a vast amount of light upon a subject of vital importance to the great wool-growing interest, and to develope facts in regard to crossing the different breeds of sheep, of which while; it acts nearly like melted moist all the while; it acts nearly like melted moist all the while; it acts nearly like melted moist all the while; it acts nearly like melted with salt or hrine, it is tonghout the moist; and so with a horse's foot. And here let me add, the while it is this way: Salt will extract mois count for it in this way: Salt will extract mois ture from the atmosphere, which keeps the feet moist all the while; it acts nearly like melted grease upon the feet. The hoof becomes tongh but yet pliable. Like a chunk of wood saturated with salt or hrine, it is tonghout and so with a horse's foot. And here let me add, the while; it acts nearly like melted grease upon the feet. The hoof becomes tongh but yet pliable. Like a chunk of wood saturated with salt or hrine, it is tonghout and the while; it acts nearly like melted grease upon the feet. The hoof becomes tongh but yet pliable. Like a chunk of wood saturated with salt or hrine, it is tonghout and the same and the s more than nine-tenths of the farmers, as well as the manufacturers of wool, are entirely ignorant. The numerous specimens of wool, from various breeds of sheep and their crosses, illustrated in these articles, are represented as magnified 500 times, exhibiting the scales of imbrication, which constitute the felting or pulling properties of the wool in a very perfect manner. But the great value of these illustrations is the light they shed pon the consequences of crossing the various reeds. While the wool from unmixed breeds exhibit almost uniformity of size throughout the entire length of the fiber, other specimens from cross breeds show great inequality. For instance, a specimen from Silesian and Spanish parents is exhibited under the magnifier, which shows not only great unevenness among the different fibers, out what is more striking, the size of the same iber is more than three times as large in one place han in another, even within the small space coinng within the field of the microscope, and this characteristic marks every specimen from sheep

The author thus explains the cause and manner of these irregularities and distortions in a single fiber of wool. He says: "In the wool of cross hred sheep, the hair of the male and of the female are both distinctly visible, in addition to which there is a general tendency to amalgamation or fusion of the wool of both parents, and this occurs, not through the whole length of a hair, but partially. Hence the distortions. A hair, for example, may hegin of the Normal size of the sire; then it stimlates the mother's larger wool; then the father's s again imilated; then again the mother; and this continued throughout a hair, gives rise to those unsightly and inconve ient distortions al ways found in a wool of cross treed. It is this tendency to fuse, or amalgamate, always attended by exaggeration, that forms the objectionable characteristics of cross-bred wools, so far as sheep are concerned." While this peculiarity in wool is so marked, no such distortions are produced in the hair from a cross of the Cashmere or Thibet goat with our nmou goat. Specimeus of the wool from th pure Cashmere goat, and its various crosses, from Mr. Richard Peter's herd at Atlanta, Ga., were examined. The author describes the sample from the pure Cashmere as follows: "The sample taken from the buck of the pure herd is, without exception, the most beautiful wool the author ever gazed upon-of a pure, dazzling white, lustrous, delicately soft to the touch, and silky beyond the power of expression; added to which it is eld nches long. The m croscopical examination justities the anticipation of unassisted vision, for surely a more interesting and beautiful sight was never seen. The hairs range in diameter from a trifle less than one square of the micrometer to two squares; others a square and a half: another is one square and three-quarters; and lastly, two squares of the micrometer are attained. Beyond this it does not extend. The largest hairs of this remarkable goat are fiver than the Southdown sheep, only half the size of the Leicester, and certainly not larger than the finest Cotswold. The smallest hairs are positively finer than ordinary Saxon wool."

In regard to "crossing" the Cashmere with the sommon goal, the author remarks: "This damages them as much as sheep, yet the plan or method of exhibition of its effects is essentially different. In the goat there is no tendeucy to amalgamation, ness, is by no means discouraged, although he or fusion, but on the contrary, each parent maintains its individuality; that is to say, that the offspring of a "cross" has the distinct hairs of both parents, as perfect and well defined as well as though they were obtained from the different animals. In the middle of a hundle of hairs, all obtained from the father (Thibet), will be found a umber of strange, opaque, very large hairsvidently of different structure, ohtained from the mother; many of them measure as much as eight and some of them ten or twelve aquares of the mi crometer, and while the hairs of the sire are sin gularly translucent, these gigantic hairs are as black as Erebus! At a glance it must be obvious that, however much the common goat may advantage by association with the Cashmere, the wonderful property and sterling qualities of the latter are degraded and lost by this mean association. The disparity of size and structure between the wool of the Thihet, and the strong unsightly hairs of the common goat, is such that it ertainly amounts to a specific difference, and this may account for the inability to amalgamate. These investigations show how important is the ight of science in the business of wool growing, that while the farmer blindly attempts to improve his stock of sheep, hy "crossing," he is actually mpairing the value of the wool. The copywright of these articles being secured, we hope it is the design of the author to give them to the public in a specific volume.

Great efforts have been made for severs years to supplant all the old varieties of rheubarb or "pie-plant," hy a new seedling called "the Cahoon." This last is a gigantic plant of the rhenbarb family, and is in some localities found very productive. Experiments made at the Toledo (Ohio) Nurseries last year, however, induce us to doubt whether it is a good variety for the latitude of Kentneky and further South, owing to its liability to summer rot, or "die down." It will not stand our July and Angust suns as well as some other kinds. Even as far North as Lake Erie, its leaves wither, fade, and drop down in the latter month. The old Linneus variety stands well there, as it does here, and the experiment referred to seemed to demonstrate that it will grow luxuriantly all the summer long, if properly planted, and yield as much as the gigantic "Cahoon."

I'AINT UP THE IRON TOOLS .- The action of the weather upon farm implements when they are not protected, we have found by experience, to do nearly as much, and sometimes more, towards their destruction, than the wear and tear. Ploughs, cultivators, and auch like tools, are in use only in the warmer parts of the season. During the winter they lay unused by their owners, but, unless protected sufficiently, the weather uses them pret y hard. The farmer's use of them is severe a times, but it is occasional and interrupted. The weather's use of them is constant, uninterrupted. either by day or by night; every moment of time the action of the elements, heat and cold, expands and contracts, moisture pervades and rusts them, and oxygen combines with them and forms coal after coat of rust, corroding and rusting them away. It will be a good plan during some of the spare moments of winter time, say of a stormy spare moments of winter time, say of a stormy day, to overhaul them, clean them up, and cover the iron parts with paint, and the wood parts too.

A mixture of sulphur and linseed oil boiled together with or without any coloring matter, is a good application. We also find the following recommended by an exchange paper, which will make a good covering:

make a good covering:
Take of coal-tar, two parts; common beeswax, one part; clarified beef's tallow, two parts; limseed oil, one part; spirits turpentine, one part;
and fuse the whole over a slow fire. When liquifisd, stir in lamp black, or any other coloring matter that may be desired, and apply while warm. Plows, wheels, harrows, crow-bars, cultivators, and indeed any other farming implements constructed either wholly or in part of iron, should receive a coating of this every fall. It fills the parea and provest all possibility of corrections. porea and prevents all possibility of cor

CHINESE SUGAR CANE AS FOOD FOR STOCK .- In the American Farmer we find a communication from Mr. M. B. Shepherd, of Flavanna county, Virginia, relative to the value of sugar cane as food fur stock. After disposing of some objections to the cane for feeding, he says: tions to the cane for feeding, he says:

"I have now grown the second crop of the Chinese sngr c.ne. I have fed it freely to horses, cattle, and hogs—to the two former in both a green and enred state; I have found that they thrive finely on it. From the great dronth we have had, the corn crop is a short one—hence, I have given my fattening hogs but little so far except sugar cane, and they are now fat. The seed I have ground with or without corn for my horses; I consider it one of the safest and most profitable crops we raise."

consider it one of the safest and most profitable crops we raise."

We have fact upon fact as to the value of the Chinese sugar cane, not only as a molasees and sugar-producing plant, but as food for stock of almost every kind; still we have theoretical pretenders among us, who know nothing practically of the characteristics of the cane, taking upon themselves the easily-assumed office of condemning, as they condemn everything which is not the creation of their own profound stupidity, or in engineering which into public notice, they were not the pioneers—a fact that would prove a most unreliable certificate to the farmers of the constructor.

Dr. Henry Goadhy, Professor of Vegetable and to imal Physiology and Entomology in the State agricultural College of Michigan, is furnishing a erics of arlicles for the Michigan Farmer, on the state of arlicles for the Michigan Farmer, on the state of the cause, and produced a remedy to myself of the cause, and produced a remedy which proved effectual. I have since tried it on foundaried or heaf bound horses and with good. Agricultural College of Michigan, is furnishing a series of arlicles for the Michigan Farmer, on the structure and properties of wool, in which the propriety of "crossing" is fully considered and practically demenstrated. The articles are accompanied with a large number of microscopic illustrations of the wool from sheep of the variance with the wonderful effects in a few days. I account for it in this way: Salt will extract mois the same tree of the same sheep.

> CORN AND COR MEAL FOR POULTRY .- The cheapest, and we believe the best winter food for all kinds of ponltry, is Indian corn ground in the ear, known as corn and cob meal. They will eat the whole if given to them dry, or it put into warm water, or worked into a putding, hens, three, and geese are very fond of it. Their gizards will grind no any coarse particles of the keys, and geese are very fond of it. Their giz-zards will grind np any coarse particles of the coh that may be in the meal, and it appears to suit both their appetites and their constitutiona remarkably well.
> We have found the use of corn and cob meal

hetter adapted to those animals that give their food a second grinding. Thus cattle that chew the end do better upon it than hogs. Horses do very well npon it, as they give it a pretty severe grinding hefore it is swallowed. Ponitry have a mill in their gizzards, and they give it a pretty good pulverizing as it passes along, and thus all the alimentary or untritious portions of it are ex-tracted and assimilated. It is thus that a saving will be effected over the common mode of feeding poultry by shelling corn for them, and throwing the cobs away - Maine Farmer.

Is rapidly advancing in the estimation of the public. It is no empirical nostrum; its component principles are made known to the entere medical faculty. It ls prepared accurately from the recipe of an experienced and talented physi-cian, and has proved itself to be the greatest remedy for all diseases of the greatest remedy for all diseases of the Lungs ever discovered; and wherever it has been introduced it has made cares which are perfectly astonishing. It is bound to supersede every other Cough Medicine before the public. Testimonials are daily being sent into the proprietor, of cures effected even after physicians had abandoned every hope. A single trial will convince the most incredulous of its efficacy in curing that class of diseases for which it is designed. Why is it that so many die every year of Consumption, or some other disease of the Lungs? Because they neglect its sure forerunner—a "timple cold,"—which might be easily cured by the prompt nee of a single bottle of Dr. John Bull's "Compound l'ectoral of Wild Cherry." We say, therefore, Try it, by all means. It this does not cure you, nothing can.
